KANSAS STIRRED BY A MURDER MYSTERY

Married Man Arrested and Must Stand Trial For Girl's Murder.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Topeka, Kas., Nov. 1.—From center to circumference Allen county continues stirred over the mystery attending the alleged murder of Miss May Sapp, for which Samuel P. Whitlow, a business man of prominence and high standing, has been arrested and must stand trial. Opinion is divided on the question of the guilt or innocence of the accused man, and further developments in the strange case are eagerly awaited by the people. Whitlow, continues to declare his innocence and his family and many friends are standing by him.

It is now more than four weeks since the alleged murder occurred. Miss May Sapp, the victim, was the twenty-year-old daughter of J. N. Sapp, a prominent farmer of Merna, a village on the eastern edge of this county. On the night of September 27 the girl was found dead in the yard of her father's home. Her throat was slashed, presumably with a razor that was found close by. Her mother had reached her side in response to the girl's screams but she died without speaking. The mother was unable to say positively whether her daughter had been murdered "either" or "murdered."

For nearly two weeks the case remained a mystery. Then the community was startled by the arrest of Samuel P. Whitlow in connection with the case. Whitlow, a grain and feed merchant, is forty years old and has a wife and three children. Until involved in the present case he had always borne a good reputation.

Upon his arrest Whitlow made a remarkable confession, the substance of which was that Miss Sapp had committed suicide because of her unrequited love for him. He formerly was a school teacher and Miss Sapp was one of his pupils. They had been friends for several years. He declared that he and the girl had never been intimate. He said that the girl had become infatuated with him and had repeatedly urged him to leave his family and run away with her. He said that on the night of the tragedy he was not at the rear of her father's house and told her that their relations must cease, whereupon she drew a razor across her throat.

One of the remarkable features of the case was a diary which Whitlow produced and in which he purported to have set forth from day to day the annoyances to which Miss Sapp had subjected him because he did not return her love. He declared that the girl was in the habit of coming to his house at night and leaving books of her hair on the door-knob and disturbing things in the yard in order that he would know that she had been there. In his diary he set forth his constant fear that his family or the family of the girl might learn of her mad infatuation.

The coroner's jury, however, did not accept Whitlow's tale as wholly true and the result of their investigation was that he was held on the charge of murder. The parents of the dead girl testified that they did not believe their daughter had committed suicide and so far as they knew she did not possess the razor with which the deed was committed. The suspicion against Whitlow was further strengthened by the testimony of his wife that she knew he had come to the Sapp home on the night of the killing and that on the following morning she had found blood stains on her husband's jacket.

Hotel-Canning factory, spent thirty-six hours behind the bars before he arranged a settlement of the case on the basis of $225 to purchase bail for the wounded affection of Mr. Moon, the plaintiff in the action. ## FEW VOTERS WILL GO HOME TO VOTE

Small Number Will Leave Washington to go Home to Vote, as Has Been Custom.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—Time was a few years ago when the approach of election day brought out Washington a Sunday quiet. For several days previous to the election the departments would empty themselves of voters and in all the big government buildings the forces would be reduced to the lowest minimum possible. During the past few years, however, conditions have undergone a great change and so far as Washington is concerned a person might never know that election will be held in a dozen states Tuesday. The extension of the civil service is one of the great causes for the change and another is found in the fact that free transportation is not floating around nowadays as it was in times gone by.

A canvass of the various departments today shows that few heads or clerks expect to return home to cast their ballots next week. About the only exception to the rule is found in those who come from Maryland or Kentucky, in which states the contests are regarded as unusually close and consequently of more than ordinary importance. So far as is known few government employees who claim Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Jersey or New York—in all of which states some sort of an election is to take place Tuesday—will take the trouble to go home to vote.

SPORTING NEWS.

COACH JOSH CRANE.

Harvard Football Master is a Millionaire Sportsman.

HIS RECORD AS ATHLETE.

Has Taken Interest in Tennis, Polo, Yachting and Running in Addition to Gridiron Game—He Excelled as a Kicker in College.

Everybody refers to Joshua Crane, the man who is trying to give Harvard a winning football eleven this year, as a successful all round sportsman. His active interest in beautiful exercise covers a wide range—indoor tennis, outdoor tennis, polo, yachting and football. In everything connected with sport which he has ever made it his concern to know he has astonished even his friends by his ability to learn quickly and to excel.

Crane was graduated from Harvard in 1900 and has been able to gratify an instinctive love for the "higher grade" sports. He is by profession an electrical engineer and, being a millionaire, is able to keep in touch with his recreations to an extent greater than the average engineer or the average man.

Joshua Crane prepared for college at Brookline (Mass.) high school. There he was interested greatly in sports, but was hardly large enough physically to make a serious struggle for a place on any of the athletic teams. At Harvard, after he had taken on a little more weight, he sought a position on his class team. In 1899 he won out in the contest for fullback.

His emphatic merits in football at that time were his kicking and his hand work. Captain Cunnock—over remembered by Harvard men as the leader of the eleven which broke the long string of Yale victories—called Crane the best punter and drop kicker in college. Excellent hands for his judgment was furnished by Crane in the punting and drop kicking contests

JOSHUA CRANE, HARVARD'S MILLIONAIRE
FOOTBALL COACH.

In the spring of 1899, when Crane carried away the prizes.

In the same year he gratified his ambition to get a varsity letter at Cambridge by making the track team. He took part in the hurdles and in the pole vault. He was a consistent ten foot six inch man in the latter event and in the former was able to do 10.25 seconds. At the A. A. U. championships in 1901 Crane won second place in the pole vault. And the crouching start, universal at the present time, obtained when Crane was streaking over the cinders in the high hurdles his time might have been close to even time.

In the fall of 1897, when Harvard was blessed with such freshman material as Charles Dudley Daly, John W. Hollowell, William T. Reid, Jr., Shirley Ellis and other individuals of surprising excellence, Crane was Cameron Forbes' right hand man. Under that most successful Harvard coach his knowledge of the game and his ability to impart what he knew increased sufficiently to enable him in 1898, when he occupied the position of freshman coach, to send an eleven to the gridiron which swamped the Yale youngsters by a score of 22 to 0.

The game as it was played seven, eight and nine years ago has a friend in Crane, but at the same time he doesn't hesitate to compare it unfavorably either with the game as it can be played today or as it was played fifteen, sixteen or seventeen years ago. He says that what he especially liked about the sport in Cunnock's day was its possibility for open play, a possibility that during the last minutes and early half of the present decade came to lose much of its value. Crane argues that the fashion of tackling low was responsible more than any other reason for the elimination of end runs and for the substitution of mass plays. And, he adds, the luxury of officials was responsible for low tackling.

"End runs were possible," he says substantially, "when men tackled high—when officials were strict in their rulings. Tackling around the waist gave way to tackling around the knees and finally to even lower tackling—which was tripping—and then the chances of making end runs lessened greatly. It became necessary in order to gain ground consistently to mass as many men as possible on the line. Thus mass plays. The whole trouble with the old game lay in the luxury of officials."

COVE ON THE WARPATH.

Bantam Champion of California on Trail of Eastern Pugilists.

Porcello Cove, a new champion of the Pacific coast, he having captured the bantam honors, has arrived in New York with a chip on his shoulder. Cove has a determined looking fighting face, and his attitude would seem to indicate that he knows how to handle himself in the ring. All his battles have been with little fellows in California, and, while excellent reports have been circulated with reference to his ability, still there is no good line on him, and New Yorkers will not know much about him until he has been tried out by some of the eastern bantams.

Leading experts on boxing in California, including Jack Glendon, have asserted that Cove is one of the best men that ever put on a glove. He is said to have a stinging blow in each hand.

recently that he finally made up his mind to try his hand at the fighting game once more.

Gotch is to have Tommy Ryan, the retired middleweight champion, to teach him all the fine points of the hit and get away game, and under Tommy's handling Gotch ought to develop into a fast man with the mitts.

Ryan intends to match Gotch against a second rate for a limited number of rounds before the snow flies. If Gotch shows up well in that battle Ryan will try to get him on with some of the good big fellows.

PRESS COMMENT.

Roosevelt Keeps His Hands Off.
St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The president says he was not consulted by Mr. Parsons before that Republican-Hearst fusion was made in New York county, and that he knew nothing about it until after he returned from the canebrakes. He also says he will make no comment upon it. This is the correct course to take. New York is the president's home town. Naturally he feels a good deal of interest in the doings of the republican politicians there. One of these politicians, Mr. Parsons, who has just engineered that deal with Hearst whereby the republicans and the independence League are in a quarrel, is a close friend of the president, and the deal is not exactly to the president's liking.

But the president is also in refusing to interfere in the matter one way or the other. The thing is done, and nothing that the president could say now would undo it.

Quack Financial Remedies.
Milwaukee News: Incidental with the financial flurry in New York, which has forced the banks throughout the country to take measures to protect themselves and their depositors, emphasis is being placed upon the need for "currency reform." From various quarters we are assured that if the as-set bank currency scheme were now in force there would be no monetary stringency or financial disturbance.

The asset currency project, which has been endorsed by the American Bankers' association, was before the last congress in the form of a bill introduced by Representative Fowler. It is provided in the bill that any national bank having a surplus equal to 20 per cent of its capital shall have authority to issue credit notes equal to 40 per cent of the amount outstanding. A further issue equal to 12 1/2 per cent of its capital may be issued, subject to a tax at the rate of 5 per cent and the same reserve shall be carried against credit notes as are required against deposits. It is urged that there would be no issue of credit notes excepting in cases of emergency and that during over the stress they would be retired.

Obviously if the banks had the power to issue credit notes and had issued none, they would be in a position to ease the financial stress that the frenzied financiers have brought upon New York and in lesser degree upon the country. But if the power to issue credit notes had existed it is not obvious that it would have been used to the limit before the crisis came and that instead of proving a means of safety it would serve to aggravate the existing difficulties. The crisis in New York is not sudden and unexpected. It is a development, a culmination of a series of circumstances. We may be sure that had there been authority for issuing credit currency, the consequences of the past two years would have led to the emitting of such notes to the full limit permitted by the law. As a means of relief it would have been exhausted before the climax arrived. Possibly it might have postponed the day of reckoning, but it could not have averted it.

THE NEW CURRENCY

The new currency, known as cash-for-a-checks, just now in circulation, is meeting the requirements of an unlooked-for emergency, and the business of the country is progressing with ordinary regularity.

During the Civil war silver retired from circulation and the government was compelled to issue fractional currency in denominations of 5, 10, 25 and 50 cents, and millions of dollars were scattered over the country to be used in the channels of trade.

It sometimes happened that the banks were unable to supply this kind of money, and then the merchants resorted to the issue of what was known as a "silver plaster" fractional currency, which passed at par in the locality where issued.

Janesville, at one time, was compelled to adopt this system, and some of the older inhabitants doubtless have recollections of those little L. O. U.'s laid away as souvenirs.

The banks, all over the country, find themselves in much the same condition today. They have all kinds of money except currency, and so the cash-for-a-check is called into service to take the place of it.

The checks are just as good as the gold, and will be redeemed and retired from circulation as soon as national currency can be secured, and that will be very soon.

If a bank should find itself short of silver or small bills to meet demands, no one would give it thought, because they are just now unable to secure larger bills, means nothing that should cause alarm, for they have all other kinds of money, and pay on demand.

The cash-for-a-check is simply a new kind of money, or rather a money with which the public is not familiar. It is as safe as any other kind of money, and all the merchants of the city use it just as freely.

In a month it will simply be an incident, and everyone will commend the wisdom displayed by the banks in providing a circulating medium at a time when it was needed.

The Green Day Gazette still is having fits all by itself over something the Gazette is alleged to have said months ago. Green Day has not yet gotten over the wave of reform that caused the removal of the district attorney from office on political reasons pure and simple.

Secretary Taft is to hurry on to Berlin so that he can then hurry on to some other place. His personally conducted tour of the world is keeping him to the fore front of dispatches just the same.

The solid south is fast becoming the solid white ribbon section of the United States. District after district have gone for prohibition in an alarming manner to the whiskey manufacturer.

A new tribe has been discovered in far-off Alaska, who never even knew what a white man was until they saw one. They made their clothes of the down and feathers of birds and lived most comfortably.

Chicago's chief of police announces that political pulls in the future will be confined to members of his private office only. The rest of the police is to be treated alike.

Chicago is still doing business by the check system and so is Janesville.

In no portion of the country are the banks in a safer financial condition than in the west.

The question of a veto to a pet ordinance that all the Milwaukee papers were urging passed, has caused Milwaukee's boy executive to squint some.

It would be hard to pass a vote of thanks to the man who invented Milwaukee's boy executive to squint some, unless the small boys were given a chance to express their opinion.

Hardly anyone realizes that a new city of South Beloit is in actual existence down near the New Railroad yards. There is a little colony all by itself.

New York has arrested a man for selling stock in a company that does not exist. How particular those New Yorkers have become all at once.

It must have been an awful shock to New York to find that the rest of the country was not willing to send down its millions to let them gamble with.

The little village of Rockton has been nearly wiped out by fire. Old landmarks that have stood the ravages of time have been swept away.

Mr. Cortelyou has certainly captured Wall street's young affections. He and his millions are pleasing assets to any class of society.

Some of those Illinois politicians who object to the primary may have heard the wall that has gone up in general in Wisconsin.

Secretary Taft is still over in the Orient, but his friends at home are not allowing his memory to become grey while he is gone.

Janesville beautiful would be just as pleasing a title for an organization as Janesville progressive, as the two go hand in hand.

There is not much time for that far-famed Indian summer to make itself felt. It will soon be Jack Frost's time to reign.

Washington is still the political center of the United States. Roosevelt is back and the cabinet members are working again.

Chicago wants to pose as a model city if the record of the police department can be believed. But this has been the cry for years past.

Out in San Francisco the question of whether the investigation of graft is to continue or not is one which is interesting the voters.

Mayor Basse has announced that he is Mayor of Chicago. Well, the public generally thought he beat Mayor Dunne last spring.

There is no regret expressed by the farmer who sold his barley ten days ago before the drop in prices came.

Finland has gone on record as prohibiting the manufacture of alcohol entirely within its borders.

Wall street has received a severe slap on the wrist and should be a good boy for a while at least.

Luckily for the harassed property-owners Oct. 31st comes but once a year.

Leading Philippine papers are advocating Free Trade with Uncle Sam.

Madison is surprised to think that it must pay extra taxes this year.

Milwaukee still has Mayor Becker with them, for a time at least.

Why not give Cortelyou a peace medal, Mister Carnegie?

PRESS COMMENT.

Ha—Here's the Sovereign Remedy! Milwaukee News: No doubt, Mr. La Follette were called into consultation by the New York financiers who could tell them a easy way to remedy matters. What they need is a primary election law.

Dietz Right in Touch. Oshkosh Northwestern: A telephone line has been extended to the home of John Dietz at Cameron dam. Hereafter there will be no excuse for the sheriff not letting Mr. Dietz know when "company is coming."

With Greed Insatiable. Racine Journal: If the money piles were mountain high the wizards would use all they could get at, and there would be seasons of hoards because of scarcity and demand for asset bank currency just as there is now.

At Its Worst—Harmless. Green Day Gazette: Former Governor Seefeld was awarded damages of six cents in his libel suit against the Milwaukee Free Press. Isn't that rating the newspaper's damaging powers at a rather low figure?

Word Orgies in the Pulpit. Madison Democrat: One preacher advises the burning of heretics and another urges the hanging of those "babe bloodhounds of hell" who desert their wives. Are these indications of a return of old-time puritanism or simply offshoots of an awakening conscience?

Evoked by President's Birthday. Milwaukee Journal: With such a record for accomplishment at the age of 49, what a wonderful life will be Theodore Roosevelt's if he is spared to the hundred three score and ten. Another "generation" for work and the pursuit of ideals!

Well! Well! Let's Hope. Evening Wisconsin: The "milk chowder" form a new cult in the city of Boston. These followers of Fletcher believe that milk should be chewed as though it were solid food. If this had become general it would reduced the amount consumed and thus offset the higher price demanded for milk throughout the country.

Old Aunt's Solace. Madison Journal: After all it isn't little figures in the real work that the four thousand odd students who are here have to do during their four year's stay with us, whether the football team wins or loses. There is all version and occupation to the full for every student who comes to the University of Wisconsin "meaning business."

Get the Money Back Went. Superior Telegram: Chicago has sent one hundred million dollars to New York to help the speculators. The west is financing New York. Let's stop it. One bank in St. Paul sent more than $700,000 to New York. It is time for this to stop. And the only way to stop it is the way the banks are doing. Let's keep our western money at home.

Plenty of Money Available. Milwaukee Free Press: The present balance in the United States treasury is over $237,000,000, and if half of it were to be deposited in the national banks, which could be done without at all crippling the treasury, there would be no money stringency. This it is understood, is what the administration will do; and when this money is circulated in payment for the farmers' crops, there will be no stringency, so far as the needs of honest business are concerned. The speculators will have to look out for themselves, and there will be no panic, even if there is an occasional bursting up among them. There are no more useless citizens than those who play the get-rich-quick game.

Windy Speculation Reined In. Chicago Record-Herald: Stock gambling, "chains of banks" started by and for manipulation and reckless borrowing, juggling with securities, illegal loans, loans and vicious financing—these are the things that caused the Wall street slump and collapse. The relief and salvation, on the other hand, have come from men and principles that represent work, savings and honest investment, careful methods of using credit, intelligent and conservative application of capital to new enterprises.

When in the future the West refuses stock gambling and reckless speculation, it will behoove the gentry in and around Wall street to display humility and a willingness to learn and profit by sound advice. The gambling and frenzied speculation who have been in the habit of sneering at the ignorance and slowness of the West and its failure to appreciate the benefits of windy speculation, should sing small after their recent experience.

Watering the Oyster. Superior Telegram: Kansas is a long distance from the oyster beds—nevertheless it is interesting to learn from a bulletin of the Kansas board of health that oysters, no less than cattle and corporate stocks, are watered to increase their bulk. When the oysters have been caught and are still in the shell, they are "floated" that is, are put into a float large enough to contain a number of bushels, and let down into fresh water, where they are allowed to drink as much as they like. Then, their shells removed, they are "soaked." This is accomplished by putting them in a large tank of fresh water, where they are occasionally stirred, and are left from three to twelve hours in order that they may absorb all the water possible. This adds to their bulk. When thus soaked, they are packed, they appear solid, but after they stand a few days or are shaken by transportation, the water gradually seeps out. This water is what is called "oyster liquor." The process adds 15 per cent to the bulk, and being fraudulent, should be prohibited.

Never a Sign of Wear.

"Dr. Richards, just look at those crowns," said a party recently. "They are as solid and good as they were the day you put them on five years ago."

Lots of people right here in Janesville are wearing dental work done by Dr. Richards much longer ago than the five years spoken of by the above party.

He does his work solidly. For permanence. For durability. For lasting qualities.

Once you choose him for your dentist, you will never change dentists again.

Because he gives satisfaction. His prices the most reasonable in the city.

He gives about TWICE the amount of work for your money, you will pay elsewhere.

"SPIRIT" REVELS WERE HARMLESS

LITTLE DAMAGE DONE IN CITY AND NO ARRESTS MADE.

WAS FESTAL NIGHT INDOORS

Entertainments Large and Small Being Given in Almost Every Neighborhood.

Halloween passed without any damage of a very serious nature being done in the city, so far as can be learned, and no arrests were made by the officers. A number of youngsters were taken to the station, however, and given a hard scare which sent them scurrying home, once they were set at liberty. Report has it that the school building in the second ward was entered and some of the furniture damaged and that a few archaic wooden sidewalks and gates suffered displacement. Store windows were treated to the usual soap and water. City Marshal Appleby drove about with a horse and buggy; Officer Brown patrolled the city in Dr. Eldon's automobile; and Officers Fleming and Morrissey were in command of the patrol wagon. In almost every neighborhood the customary indoor festivities were in progress and entertainments at theatres and dance halls were well attended.

Dance at Central Hall.
At Central hall a large company of dancers assembled to participate in an excellent program of two-steps and waltzes provided by the Knott & Hatch orchestra. The festivities were in progress until one o'clock this morning.

Supper and Hop at Links.
Roy Carter played for a hop at the golf clubhouse. The dance was preceded by a spread composed of such commodities as wieners, sausages and pumpkin pie, which was served at 7:30, and a series of Halloween games—bobbing for apples in the dishpan, and the like. Those present were the Misses Josephine Treat, Grace Valentin, Elizabeth Wilcox, Winifred Field, Vera Wilcox, Louise Merrill, and Hazel Spencer; the Messrs. Stanley Woodruff, Henry Carpenter, John Lewis, Samuel Gehlin, Frank Kimball, Stanley Imwiddle, and Leo Brown.

Girls Garbed as Men.
In order that the propriety might be fulfilled, the police report that a number of well known Second Ward ladies were discovered by them garbed in the habiliments of the sterner sex. So few particulars are given by the discreet officers—represented as telling the fair ones that they would never reveal their names if they would "go right home"—that the staid citizens will be inclined to accept the report with a large measure of unbridled credence.

White Tied at Round-House.
One of the most daring of the pranks was executed by some unknown youth who sealed the round-house roof and tied down the valve of the large whistle with a piece of cord. The result was that the steam boiler continued for at least a quarter of an hour before the cause of the trouble could be located.

The Misses Thiele Entertained.
At their home on Fourth avenue the Misses Catherine and Camilla Thiele entertained a company of twenty-five at Halloween games and music. At midnight a tempting luncheon was served.

Master Eugene Rich Host.
Master Eugene Rich entertained a company of ten playmates at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Stern, on Prospect avenue.

Surprise Party.
Mr. and Mrs. Ann Anderson were happily surprised by 20 of their neighborhood friends at their home, 16 Highland avenue, last evening. Stunts appropriate of the evening completed the amusement of the gathering.

At the Nicholson Home.
Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Nicholson entertained a number of friends at their home, 151 Main street, last night.

The Carles Entertained.
Mr. and Mrs. Norman Carle entertained a small company of friends at a Halloween party.

SENATE MANGLES PRIMARY MEASURE

WHEN "INDIANS" ARE DONE.

CLAUSES STRICKEN OUT

Illinois Lower House is Not Likely to Agree to Changes—"Open Sunday" Legislation is Killed.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 1.—The gory scalp of the Oglesby primary election bill dangles from the belt of the senate
"Indians." Of the far-reaching and highly ornamental measure that was handed to the senate by the house nothing remains but the bare direct primary requirement for nominations for political offices.

While wielding the knife and tom-hawk Thursday, the senators stripped the bill of provisions as follows:

Eliminating the provision for the election of electors for president and vice president under the act.

Striking out a similar provision for the election of delegates to the national convention.

Stripping the act of all applicability of voluntary party machinery, including the election of party committeemen.

McGoorty Amendment Killed.

Cutting out the "McGoorty amendment" adopted by the house and restoring the original clause of the bill
on the subject of legislative elections.
The McGoorty amendment provided that the voters should decide whether a party should nominate one, two or three senatorial candidates. In its original form as amended by the senate the bill provides that the senatorial committee shall decide the number of candidates a party shall nominate.

Providing that the clause prohibiting a voter from participating in a primary within a year after voting another party ticket shall not apply in cases of city, village or town elections. This permits voters in small municipalities to support non-partisan tickets in local elections. The time clause in this section was changed from one to two years.

Providing that five of the fifteen commissioners in Cook county shall be elected from without the city of Chicago.

With these changes, together with the extraction of a clause which was overlooked by the house and was without effect in the measure as amended in the lower branch, the Oglesby bill was sent to third reading late Thursday afternoon. The program includes its passage Friday.

Jones Criticizes Cannon.

In the course of the fight over the measure Senator Jones aroused to arms the friends of Speaker Cannon by criticizing the action of that dignitary in hurrying to Springfield to secure changes in the primary bill, with the evident feeling that he did not dare go before the people with his candidate for president.

Speaker Cannon had distinguished company in his campaign for the revision of the drastic Oglesby bill. His associates included Postmaster Cambell of Chicago, Congressman Lorimer and Rodenberg, Court Clerk Hines of Chicago, former State Treasurer
Small, Col. Frank L. Smith of Dwight and others.

May Not Reach Agreement.

It is not expected that the house will accept the senate's work and a joint conference is almost certain to result. Some are predicting and more are hoping that the senate and house will be unable to get together on the bill in any form.

Representative Lantz has announced that if the house attempts to concur in the senate amendments by a constitutional majority he will carry the question of the constitutionality of the act into the courts. His position is based on the contention that since a two-thirds vote is necessary to pass the bill with the emergency clause, a concurrence in amendments must be by the same vote.

Open Sunday Bill Dead.

The killing of the "Open Sunday"
bill of the United Societies in the senate Thursday will end the efforts of that organization to secure legislation at the present session. Leaders of the organization see it is futile to attempt to get any bill on the subject past the president of the senate.

The Allen-Lantz bill, providing for the removal of obstructions from the Illinois and Desplaines rivers and declaring these navigable streams, was called up on its passage, but lacked two of receiving the two-thirds vote necessary to pass with the emergency clause.

Found Not Guilty of Bribery.
Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 1.—H. P.
Vandusen, chairman of the board of public works; W. D. Kelly, member of the board; A. L. Thomas, former chairman of the board, and T. P. McMahon, until two weeks ago superintendent of sidewalks and previous to that time
a member of the board of aldermen, were acquitted Thursday of the charge of bribery.

Dr. Richard Mohr Falls Dead.
Philadelphia, Nov. 1.—Dr. Richard Mohr, general director of the Hahnemann hospital in this city and professor of materia medica and therapeutics, dropped dead Thursday while walking down Chestnut street. Dr.
Mohr was 63 years of age, and was widely known in his profession.

day.—Abraham Lincoln.

PLAY TIME FOR CHILDREN.

First Seven Years of Life Should Be Devoted to Games.

The first seven years of a child's life should be one grand period of play. Games which bring into play all the muscles of the body, and which
at the same time divert the mind, should be taught them. Buy him books which have interesting pictures representing the different trades and occupations. These will interest him more and give him more definite ideas than any descriptions. Blocks which have pictures on them of the different animals and flowers will afford him much amusement. When he is a little older a box of the little red kindergarten blocks should be given him. Teach the child to build houses, barns, bridges, etc. Such amusement as that will be instructive.
In an older child one should encourage outdoor sports. The Irish malle, which is held in the hands and pushed backward and forward, are to be recommended. They strengthen the back and arms. Of course, a child should be taught to help in the way of putting away his toys and picking up articles. One mother said when sewing she would purposely drop her scissors or spool and explain to her child how much he would help by picking it up.
He extremely pleased when the child performs any little service like this,
and this will encourage him more than talking could.

WOMAN WHO IS APPRECIATED.

She of Sunny, Cheerful Temperament Always Popular.

The woman who is appreciated is generous not so much with money as with large-heartedness and thoughtfulness and sympathy. The world loves the one who can find a redeeming quality, even in the greatest of sinners, one who forbears to strike a defenseless soul. The sunny, hopeful woman is ever in request. Every door flies open to her who has a chery, pleasant word and a bright smile.
She is the woman who is always considerate of the rights of others and never attempts to monopolize the conversation or to make herself the center of attraction. She realizes that money will not buy love. That though a woman may enjoy every comfort and luxury obtainable, her home may be absolutely cheerless because of love's absence. She knows that there is no woman living who, deep down in her heart, does not appreciate being cared for, admired and loved by those she comes in contact with.

There's a Reason For All Things.

Why, do you think, can Doves sell pure paint as low as others sell adulterated paint? There are 30 or 40 or 50 different makers of paint, that rank, in a way, as "first-class," they have their regions; one's region is large, another's small; everyone is

"first-class" in its region. Of these 30 or 40 or 50, one is best, another

next, and so on down; but the prices are all the same or about the same—

you can buy one for less than another though; a personal matter sometimes. But how, do you think, can Doves sell the best for no more than the rest? The answer is, it costs less to sell it; more to make, less to sell. Reputation helps sell it. Its 75 years' help sell it. Go by the name.

FIRE DESTROYED
PART OF ROCKTON

ELEVEN BUILDINGS TOTALLY DE-STROYED—OTHER DAMAGE.

LOSS IS FIFTY THOUSAND

Fire Departments of Rockford and Beloit Furnish Aid—Bucket Brigade Helps in Work.

Fire, which started in a mysterious manner in the rear of the Masonic Temple building in the village of Rockton, south of Beloit, shortly before eleven o'clock last night, destroyed eleven of the principal buildings of the town, including the famous New England hotel, and caused a loss of fifty thousand dollars before extinguished at six this morning. Fire hose with volunteer workers from Beloit and a fire engine from Rockford aided in saving the remainder of the village, which was a target for the composed of citizens and persons attracted to the scene by the flames.

Mysterious Origin
The fire is of a mysterious origin.
It was discovered in a shed in the rear of the Masonic Temple block shortly before eleven by two millions, and spread rapidly. A call was sent to Beloit for aid and a hose cut with volunteers went overland by train. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road also ran a special train down on which other workers went,
many walking home after their exertions this morning. So quickly did the flames spread that they were seen in both Rockford and Beloit before quarter after eleven and was even noticed by persons in this city a short time later.

Buildings Burned
Four three-story brick and stone buildings, four two-story frame buildings and the old three-story hotel building went like tinder when once the fire made any headway. The buildings across the street were also threatened, but were saved from total destruction by a bucket brigade which was organized and by hanging wet clothes on the fronts and keeping men on the roofs to put out the sparks.

Individual Losses
The Mrs. William Smith property, three-story stone building, is valued at $15,000; George H. Curry, owner of stock, at $1,000; the Thompson-Baker building at $3,000 and their stock at $1,500; the Fred Rockwell building at $3,000; the New England Hotel at $1,000; the Rockton Hardware Co.
building, $2,000 and stock at $3,000;
the C. E. Phelps building at $3,000, stock at $3,500; and the frame building at W. Ave. at $1,000. The loss also included the postoffice and its contents.

Were Delayed
The Beloit Fire department hose team was delayed from getting into actual service by the failure to make good connections with the Rockford fire engine and it was three o'clock before water from the hose was thrown on the flames and then the work was confined to saving the rest of the town.

Two Injured
Max Bethel and John Carleton were injured by falling awnings while carrying goods from the burning building and Cooley Buchanan, who was helping to remove them from an attack of diphtheria, was moved from one of the buildings and it is feared will not recover from the shock sustained.

THE SAME OLD FORTY
FIVE MINUTES AWAY

Emma Carus and Scott Welsh Delightful in Roles of "Mary" and
"Kil Burns."

When George M. Cohan conceived his music and plot for "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway" he mixed melodrama, farce and music together and in the ensemble developed a production that is pleasing and gives its characters opportunity to demonstrate the parts assigned to them. With Emma Carus in the role of "Mary-Jane Jenkins," the part created by Fay
Templeton, and Scott Welsh as "Kil Burns," the two parts about whom the play is built, the Kilburn & Emma company playing at the Myers Theatre last evening gave excellent satisfaction. The scenery of the company was that designed for the Colonial theatre, Chicago, when the first company appeared and was most elaborate.

The production was a finished one and the company go into Chicago for a two weeks' run at McVickers theatre, opening Monday next. Miss Carus made a much more favorable impression as "Mary" than did Cor-dine, who played the part here last season, and Scott Welsh had lost none of his shaggy talk and played the part of the race-track follower with a big heart but unorthodox manners, most excellently. The rest of the company was most evenly balanced.

HIS COURTSHIP

By HELEN R. MARTIN,
Author of "Tillie: A Mennonite Maid."

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & COMPANY.

"I know enough to get along. What's the use of botherin' your mind with more'n that?"

Daisy sighed with undisguised sympathy.

"I can understand, Peter," said Georgiana thoughtfully, "your preference for fiction rather than for a statistical, scientific work like that. No doubt you feel without fully comprehending it the more inward significance of fancies that embody spiritual truths than of isolated hard facts about the Buck family which lead nowhere."

"Now," mused Kiroos, "that wouldn't be so bad if she weren't talking to a farmhand. If only she didn't give herself over so entirely to her little pose of being superior," he thought ruefully, "she might be very attractive—she's so tremendously good looking. I wonder what she would be like if she dropped it."

"Peter," said Daisy, "one of these days I want you to hire Abe's horse and buggy from him and take me for a drive and show me the country. Will you? Of course I'll pay the price. Abe's so tight across the chest he'd never give it to us for nothing."

"Oh, Daisy," gently protested Georgiana, "what an expression! Instead of trying to give these people higher standards you would debase their taste with your low—yes, low—slang."

"Economical," Daisy corrected herself. "Abe's so economical, I mean. Will you take me driving, Peter?" she asked ingratiatingly.

Instead of looking gratified, as she expected him to do, Peter appeared rather daunted at the prospect.

"Oh, Peter," Daisy reassured him, "you needn't mind me. Now, if it were Miss Elery that asked you you might be scared white."

"You see," Peter explained apologetically, "we've so common out here towards what you are—no wonder if a body felt funny takin' one of your buggy rides. Us we don't know nothin' but to sleep and feed our faces."

"If you will make yourself worthy of better things, Peter, they will come to you," said Georgiana earnestly. "All the good things of the universe come to him who is ready for them."

"Good things? What, now, would you call good things?" he asked curiously.

"Love, for instance," said Georgiana, with uplifted countenance.

"Umph!" he grunted. "I never thought so much of this here love like some folks. I always held that Adam would've been better off if he'd kept his ribs."

"Why, Peter," cried Daisy, "I never would have suspected you of having such views!"

They had reached the farm, and at this moment they encountered the girl Eunice carrying two heavy pails of milk from the barn toward the spring house. Abe, the farmer's son, walked at her side, apparently pursuing her with some request which she refused him, for her face was troubled and she hurried a step ahead of him.

Almost before he knew what he was doing Kiroos was at the girl's side, relieving her of both her pails. She colored with confusion before a gallantry to which she was unaccustomed, while Abe scowled resentfully and stalked off in another direction.

"Did you see that?" asked Georgiana as she and Daisy went into the kitchen. "It would never occur to Abe to carry those heavy pails for that slender looking girl. I believe there is a latent fineness in this Peter."

"It's awfully latent, dear," said Daisy, with unreserved disapproval. "Don't you think so?"

"I believe that he has fine, though undeveloped perceptions or intuitions," affirmed Georgiana, "which, with a little encouragement, may reveal him to himself."

CHAPTER VII.

ONCE again, just as the dusk was gathering, Eunice lingered by the fence near the spring house. The girl's heart was on fire this evening, and she felt that she would stifle or smother if she went into the house and shut herself within those dreary whitewashed walls. Here in the open she might breathe deep. Today her pent up feelings had reached the high water mark, and tonight they must have outlet or she must suffocate.

What was the meaning, she was asking herself in bewilderment, of this mingled ecstasy and was which were now her daily portion when of old (so long ago it seemed, though in reality it was only three weeks ago that he—the man from the city—had come among them) her soul had been cold, dormant, incapable of feeling aught of pain or pleasure? And now—to the tips of her fingers was she tingling with life, with burning emotions which stifled and pained, yet gave her the first taste of joy she had ever known. For the first time in her memory the heavy loneliness in which she had always lived seemed lifted. Something in her which had always been starved was fed. It had become worth while to rise up in the morning and go through with her tasks. The days palpitated now and throbbed. They were no longer the dull, dead drag they had been. There was always the possibility of a word or act of kindness from him. Never before in her life had she known kindness, but he had been kind to her. He had tried to shield her from her foster father's anger and had then hidden the newspaper for her. He had helped her when he saw her burdened with her heavy buckets of milk. He had several times spoken to her with a friendly interest. These episodes, entirely trifling in themselves, appeared large and luminous to this girl, accustomed only to slights. Her imagination, fired by his utter difference from any one she had ever before seen, made of him a creature whose least word or act was weighted with significance. Her absorbing and passionate interest in everything about him—his voice, his accent (so strange to her ears), the movements of his white hands (never had she seen such hands), the way he sat or walked or stood or looked—all that he did or uttered was fascinating, intoxicating. And today her feelings had suddenly reached a climax of intensity which had amazed herself. It had come upon her when she had seen him return from his afternoon outing in company with the two young ladies—young ladies of his kind of people, of education, beauty, worldly knowledge, money, freedom from drudgery, everything which made a woman appear attractive, everything which she lacked.

Apparently he had been spending the afternoon with them. There was the privilege of looking upon him for hours together, of hearing the sound of his voice, of drinking in his thoughts about things (how hungry her own mind was to read all his thoughts and feelings, and—oh, bitterness!—they had all three come upon her when, weary and soiled and overladen, she was awkwardly lugging her heavy buckets across the garden. She had fancied his snowy hands had shrunk from touching her soiled ones as he took the buckets from her. The overwhelming sense of her own inferiority in the face of the contrast between herself and the beautiful being followed by a passion of inward rebellion that had left her physically exhausted. It had not yet spent itself as just now she lingered in the dusk by the spring house fence. Her heart burned within her with a feeling that she did not understand, for the passion of jealousy was to her as unknown as the passion of love. Her own blinding, consuming emotions were appalling to herself in their utter strangeness and newness.

He had said that he wished to assume a farmhand's disguise because he didn't want to associate with the new folks. Why, then, was he spending whole afternoons with them? Was he repenting him of his whim? And they, even though they thought him a mere farmhand, could not fail to find happiness in being with him, for, farmhand or gentleman, he was himself.

The young ladies appeared to her very stupid not to recognize that he was not a farmhand. To be sure, they probably did not know many farmhands and so did not see how impossible it was, but they had only to compare him with Abe and his father to see the absurdity of it.

This evening, for the first time since he had come to the farm, she felt to wondering in a vague, indefinite way what was his mental image of herself, whom he saw only at her drudgery, treated slightly by every one, always looking hideous in her working clothes, shy before him even to cowardice. That day he had found her with the newspaper he had evidently supposed that her starting and turning white had been caused by her fear of being caught in the act of disobeying her foster father. She had read his look of half contemptuous pity clearly enough, and it had served to increase her agony of embarrassment before him. Then his poorly concealed mockery at her not knowing about that great man, Andrew Carnegie—how that had mortified her! And now to heighten the effect of her own uncomeliness here were these well dressed, well looking, well educated and worldly young ladies daily before her eyes. Oh, if only she could creep into a corner and remain unseen while still not losing the bliss of seeing him! But, then, there was the ecstasy of having him occasionally speak to her. The few dozen words he had spoken to her in the time he had been with them were graven deep in her heart. Why should he seek to talk to her now and then if he utterly despised her—he who at first had meant to avoid even these two girls from the town by assuming a farmhand's garb? He never talked to Ollie. Why did he speak to her? True, their few encounters had been quite accidental. He had not sought her out. Perhaps he took the trouble to speak kindly to her because he was sorry for one whom every one else half despised.

Her thoughts were interrupted by the sound of approaching footsteps and voices. The two young ladies were coming toward her across the grass plot.

"Eunice!" cried Daisy when still a few yards distant. "Do you know where Peter is? I want to hire him to take us for a drive."

Eunice's heart beat thick in her breast. To see these pretty girls, their fair bodies daintily clad, their white hands bearing no ugly marks of rough work, their eyes free of wrinkles bright with happiness—to look on and see them drive off into the summer twilight with him—she could not bear this evening!

"Where is he?" repeated Daisy. "I'm going to find him if I have to search all over the farm. It's such a dandy evening for a drive!"

"Did you look up in the north cornfield?" Eunice asked, not clenching up, ets of milk. He had several times spoken to her with a friendly interest.

These episodes, entirely trifling in themselves, appeared large and luminous to this girl, accustomed only to slights. Her imagination, fired by his utter difference from any one she had ever before seen, made of him a creature whose least word or act was weighted with significance. Her absorbing and passionate interest in everything about him—his voice, his accent (so strange to her ears), the movements of his white hands (never had she seen such hands), the way he sat or walked or stood or looked—all that he did or uttered was fascinating, intoxicating. And today her feelings had suddenly reached a climax of intensity which had amazed herself. It had come upon her when she had seen him return from his afternoon outing in company with the two young ladies—young ladies of his kind of people, of education, beauty, worldly knowledge, money, freedom from drudgery, everything which made a woman appear attractive, everything which she lacked.

Apparently he had been spending the afternoon with them. There was the privilege of looking upon him for hours together, of hearing the sound of his voice, of drinking in his thoughts about things (how hungry her own mind was to read all his thoughts and feelings, and—oh, bitterness!—they had all three come upon her when, weary and soiled and overladen, she was awkwardly lugging her heavy buckets across the garden. "Did you look up in the north cornfield?" Eunice asked, not clenching up,

"Way up in that north cornfield?" cried Daisy in consternation.

"You are sure he is there, Eunice?" asked Georgiana.

"It would be well for you to look there," the girl steadily replied.

"What proof can you offer that he's there, Eunice?" demanded Daisy. "I don't want to chase up there for nothing."

"If you have looked every place else, that's the only place he can be."

"That seems reasonable," Daisy granted. "Is he moving corn up there tonight?"

"No," Eunice was able to answer truthfully.

"Then what is he doing?"

"He may possibly be looking to see how the corn is coming on, but," she hastily added, "I can't prove it."

"Well," sighed Daisy, "come on, George. We'll have to state if we're going to get a drive tonight."

The Phenometer.

A curious electric machine is the phenometer. The sensitive part of the instrument is a huge metal cap, which is brought slowly down upon the head, and clamping the skull gently but firmly, indicates the size of the "bumps" at 28 different points. The turning of a handle not only registers the size of each "bump," but prints and delivers the record.

SUPPLY OF CASH WILL BE LARGER

INCREASE OF BANK NOTE CIRCULATION SEEMS CERTAIN.

MUCH GOLD ON THE WAY

Comptroller Ridgely's Plan Generally Approved by Bankers—Cortelyou Disposed to Help Cotton Movement.

New York, Nov. 1.—Indications that the available supply of cash would be materially increased within a short time, both by imports of gold and the increase of the bank note circulation, and that the movement of cotton and grain crops would be facilitated in every way possible with the result of increasing our credit abroad, were the salient features of Thursday's financial situation.

It seemed to be recognized everywhere that the acute stage of the crisis was over and that all that remained was to obtain sufficient cash to resume currency payments upon a broad scale and thus to restore conditions prevailing before the crisis. The engagement of gold made in New York, Chicago and elsewhere, brought up the total import movement within the past week to $23,750,000. As the amount of gold will afford a basis of credit to four times the amount, or about $95,000,000, it will in itself afford much relief to the existing pressure.

Ridgely's Plan Liked. The prompt response of the national banks throughout the country to the suggestion of Comptroller Ridgely that they should employ their United States bonds as largely as possible to secure circulation and substitute other bonds for those pledged against deposits of public money, promises a considerable increase in the available stock of currency. The estimates of an increase in the bank note circulation of $30,000,000 is considered well within the probabilities. It will require time, however, in some cases for the banks to obtain proper bonds to substitute for their United States bonds.

Mr. Vanderlip, vice president of the National City bank, made the fruitful suggestion that the savings banks would at once improve the general situation if they would sell their holdings of United States bonds to the national banks. Even in cases where they do not care to sell, it is believed that they will lend their bonds to the national banks, as has often been done in the past.

Helping Cotton Movement. Interest continues to center in the movement of the cotton crop from New Orleans and other southern points, which is so essential to provide bills against the imports of gold. Secretary Cortelyou, according to Washington dispatches, was disposed to increase deposits of public funds in the southern banks as rapidly as such funds became available. This will supply the banks with the stock of currency so much needed to handle the cotton crop and will enable them to await with less embarrassment than otherwise the arrival of their cotton bills in Europe and the bringing back of the gold.

The committee of New Orleans bankers which is in Washington has suggested that the New York banks can ease the situation by giving the southern banks credit for checks in foreign banks, forwarded as soon as they receive telegraphic advice of the amounts. This will enable the southern banks to check against such balances in payment of collections and in making remittances to interior banks throughout the country.

To Reopen Oklahoma Banks. Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 1.—Four hundred bankers, representing the Oklahoma and Indian Territory banking associations, agreed Thursday night on a plan to reopen all banks early next week.

San Antonio Bank Suspends. San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 1.—The West Texas Bank & Trust company of this city closed its doors under a temporary suspension of business Thursday and is now in the hands of the state commissioner of insurance and banking. The suspension is attributed to the tightness of the money market and the refusal of northern and eastern bankers to ship cash. The West Texas Bank & Trust company is one of the principal banking institutions of San Antonio. According to G. B. Moore, president, the company will soon be in condition to resume business.

Accused of Strangling Woman. Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Thomas Milburn, a cabman, was arrested Thursday night charged with assaulting. He attempted to strangle Mrs. Ethel Dolan, a passenger in his cab, the police say. For a week the police have been searching for the murderer of Daisy Stauch, who was strangled to death in a hotel. They are holding Milburn pending an investigation.

Risk Company Barred from Colorado. Denver, Col., Nov. 1.—Insurance Commission Rittenhouse Thursday issued an order revoking the license to do business in Colorado of the Union Fire Insurance company of Philadelphia. This is one of the largest fire insurance companies in existence. The reason assigned for the action is the alleged inaccuracy of the annual report of the company.

THINK HITCHCOCK MAY BE MURDERED

ACTOR'S FRIENDS WON'T ADMIT THAT HE HAS RUN AWAY.

ACCUSES BLACKMAILERS

Attorney Fromme Believes Gang Has Kidnaped or Killed the Man They Had Been Persecuting.

New York, Nov. 1.—The disappearance of Raymond Hitchcock, following his indictment by the grand jury, which had heard the stories of three little girls, was the absorbing topic Thursday on Broadway, where those who had known the star intimately during his ten years on the stage advanced half a dozen theories in explanation of his default.

The actor's closest friends, who have energetically defended his name since he became involved in trouble, are divided in opinion. Many insist that, driven desperate by serious accusations, he had committed suicide. Others were satisfied that he had been spirited away and possibly murdered by men who had practiced blackmail on the comedian and who feared exposure if the case against their victim came to trial.

This theory was voiced by Herman Fromme, the missing man's attorney, and by Mrs. Hitchcock, who before marriage was Zabelle Mangasarian of Chicago.

"Kidnaped or Murdered." Mr. Fromme said: "Hitchcock did not go away of his own accord. He has been either kidnaped or murdered by the band of blackmailers by which he has been annoyed, threatened and hounded for the past two years.

"Six of these men are known by name to me. Mr. Hitchcock has lived in a state of continual terror on account of their persecutions for two years. Nevertheless he has not left his wife voluntarily. He is an innocent man and there is no proof against him that there is the slightest foundation for the accusations made.

"Four men have been trailing him for months. Now it turns out that they are blackmailers. Last Monday Mr. Hitchcock was anxious to have this entire matter aired in court, but this outrage prevented this. The case was called for Thursday afternoon. I believe that he is the victim of blackmailers, who are not anxious to have the case thrashed out."

Police Hunt Diligently. While these theories gained some credence, the police did not relax their efforts to locate Hitchcock. All outgoing steamers were visited and their passenger lists scrutinized. A wireless message was sent to the Maritime, which sailed Wednesday. Detectives also watched the train stations, but their vigilance was not rewarded. District Attorney Jerome sent two detectives to Boston. This action probably grew out of the statement of a railroad conductor who thought he had Hitchcock as a passenger from this city to North Adams Wednesday.

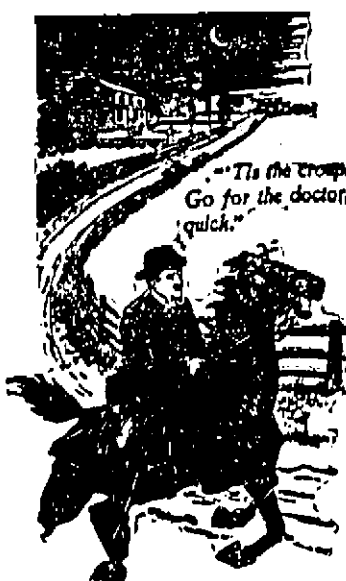

Some of Hitchcock's acquaintances think it likely that he has sought seclusion where, undisturbed for a few days, he can think over his predicament and decide upon a course of action.

Royal Fowler Is Electrocuted. Columbus, O., Nov. 1.—Royal Fowler, of Dayton, who killed his sweetheart, Mary Hagerty, more than a year ago, was electrocuted in the annex at the Ohio penitentiary a few minutes past midnight. Fowler maintained the stoical indifference, which marked his conduct during imprisonment, to the very last.

Danderine

GREW MISS LEWIS' HAIR

AND WE CAN

PROVE IT

The Great Danderine Never Fails to Produce the Desired Results

MISS Lewis' hair was very thin and it was less than two feet in length when she began using Danderine. She says her hair and scalp are now fairly teeming with new life and vigor. That's the main secret of this great remedy's success as a hair grower. It enlivens, invigorates and fairly electrifies the hair glands and tissues of the scalp, causing unusual and unheard-of activity on the part of these two most important organs, resulting in a strenuous and continuous growth of the hair.

The following is a reproduction of Miss Lewis' last letter:

January 3, 1905.

Dear Doctor Knowlton:— You know I told you in my first letter that my hair would not reach much below my shoulders, and that all of it together only made one tiny head. I am sending you my photograph, which I had taken at Stevens Bros. It tells the whole story better than I can tell it. Every lady I know is using Danderine, so you see I am doing something to show my appreciation. Sincerely yours, (Miss) EVA LEWIS.

BIMS' STENOGRAPHER NAWDED.

Girl Arrested for Stealing Papers in the Walsh Case.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—A "leak" in the office of the United States district attorney was stopped up Thursday through the energetic action of District Attorney Edwin W. Sims and Capt. Thomas L. Porter of the secret service.

Miss Etta L. McLean, a stenographer in Mr. Sims' office, was arrested late in the evening on a charge of the theft of valuable government papers and records. These papers are connected with the prosecution of John R. Walsh, former president of the Chicago National bank, who is to be tried November 12 on charges of misappropriating funds of the bank and making false entries in reports to the controller of the currency.

Soon after Miss McLean was arrested Alexander B. Gordon, who resides at 697 North Clark street, and places where Miss McLean rooms, was taken in custody. The charge is that the two conspired in the stealing.

IMMENSE DEAL IN TOBACCO.

English Company Buys Crop of Five Kentucky Counties.

Henderson, Ky., Nov. 1.—By a deal consummated here Thursday night the Imperial Tobacco company purchased the entire 1907 tobacco crop pledged to the American Society of Equity in Henderson, Union, Webster, Hopkins and Crittenden counties. The deal involves 16,000,000 pounds of tobacco, and will bring $1,500,000 of English money to the farmers of this section.

The price paid was that demanded by the farmers, and in the highest ever paid here with the exception of the war price. All Equity factories and employees are taken over by the Imperial company and will be continued in service. Deliveries begin as soon as the tobacco is in order. The gold will be shipped from England at once.

ONLY NECESSARY TO TREAT THE STOMACH

The new theory advanced by L. T. Cooper relative to the human stomach has attracted such widespread attention that the public in cities visited by the young man has been joined by many physicians in a discussion of his beliefs and medicines. Mr. Cooper says that human health is dependent almost entirely upon the stomach. He says that no disease can be conquered without first alleviating all stomach disorders. He further says that most men and women of this generation are half-sick, owing to degenerate stomachs. And lastly, he claims that his New Discoverer medicine will rejuvenate the human stomach in 30 days.

Cooper has been traveling from one city to another, conducting in each what he calls a campaign of education. For the past year he has met the public in the larger cities of the country, and his success has been phenomenal. Thousands of people have flocked to his headquarters wherever he has gone, and the sale of his medicine has been beyond anything of the kind ever before witnessed. Possibly the most interesting feature of the attention this young man has attracted is what his army of followers whom he has converted to his beliefs through his medicines, have to say on the subject. The following statements are from two well known residents of Chicago and Boston, respectively, and the enthusiasm of these is characteristic of Cooper's admirers generally. Mrs. R. B. Mack, of 3201 State street, Chicago, says: "I have been suffering for 12 years from a combination of stomach troubles, catarrh and constipation. I had a gnawing pain in the pit of my stomach, a sort of a dull pain that I could not quite understand. Then there was a dull headache, and my mind seemed to be wandering continually. I could not eat, and what little solid food I did eat I could not retain on my stomach. I tried every remedy I could think of, and also tried out a number of patent medicines, but without any apparent result. It was through one of my friends that I heard of Cooper's preparation, and I immediately decided to try some of it. It is two weeks since I took my first dose of it, and I feel like a new woman. The headache seems to have disappeared, and the pain in my stomach along with it. The medicine is worth its weight in gold, and I want to thank Mr. Cooper for what he has done for me."

Mr. Edwin F. Morse, of 20 Oakley street, Dorchester, a suburb of Boston, says: "For three years I had not a well day. My stomach was a frightful shape; the mere thought of food would nauseate me, and I really had a horror of anything to eat. All solid food would cause me extreme indigestion, bloating and gas on my stomach, and nothing tasted right. Some time ago I got some of this Cooper's medicine, about which there is so much talk. I actually feel as well and strong as a boy ever since the first bottle. Every sign of stomach trouble has disappeared, and I have a hearty appetite and eat three square meals; every thing seems to taste good. Anyone who knows what chronic indigestion is can appreciate what this means to me. I consider this the most remarkable medicine I ever heard of."
